GAMES YESTERDAY.

Cincinnati 6, New York 4.—At grand 11, Washington 3, Brooklyn 6, St. Louis 1, Philadelphia 7, Chicago 3.

The Giants took their combs of blunders yesterday, and Cincinnati carried away a game which, with good ball playing, might have resulted in an easy victory for New-York. Ruth put forth his brilliant powers in vain, owing to the wretched support he received. The afternoon was damp, muggy and thoroughly disagreeable. It grew dark so rapidly just before 6 o'clock that the game was stopped after the seventh inning.

Lewis' antics amused the crowd. Halliday's wonderful running catch in the fifth inning deprived Gould of a home run, and the Giants of a victory at the same time.

Kirk retired in the fifth inning. Horning foolishly offered MacGregor Cermitsky from the field, calling upon a pincers to eject him. Ward interfered, however, and the key was taken. The umpire seemed to have lost his wits.

The score:
